LOVE WITHOUT FEAR is a story of two girls from a small town in America, just out of High School, devoid of funds to take them through College, who found themselves absorbed by the only opportunity in their community that brought them into contact with people from the big cities. Jasmine and Nancy were the only children of Maria and Vincentti Camponi. Jasmine was not comfortable with her life in such dull surroundings and formulated a plan with a boy friend Tommy, to run away to his home in New York, taking Nancy along, the Sister whom she loved dearly. But Maria Camponi was haunted by a secret which almost caused the demise of her daughter Nancy, as Nancy tried desperately to cope with life in the big city. Although the Sisters stuck together throughout the ordeal, Jasmine consoled Nancy but refused to believe or become involved in her Mother's problem. Jasmine's denial caused her Sister to be caught in a web of superstition and necromancy when she butt heads with Carmella, a gypsy. The story also leads to a myriad of mysteries and experiences, some happy some horrific for both Sisters and exposed a clown as the eventual culprit.
